NUMBER VII.

TO THE PEOPLE OF VIRGINIA.

Fellow Citizens,

IT was my intention to have confined my remarks to the objections contained in the remonſtrance propoſed in Albermarle. Though I have noticed them all, yet as ſome others have been made in other parts of the ſtate againſt the Alien Law, before I conclude, a few obſervations ſhall be offered on them. In the Hanover and Frederickſburgh reſolutions the Alien Law is impeached of unconſtitutionality, for uniting in the Preſident, Legiſlative, Executive and Judicial power, and for depriving perſons within the protection of government of a public and impartial trial by jury. That an alien friend, who has committed a crime within the territory of the United States, is a perſon within the ſeventh article of the amendment of the amendments of the conſtitution, and entitled to a trial by jury, is not to be controverted. But the alien law does not apply to aliens who have committed offences, but to thoſe who have not committed offences, but who are ſuſpected of intending to commit them. It is to prevent the commiſſion of crimes that the Preſident is authoriſed to order them out of our country, before the crimes are committed. Every ſovereign power ſurely may take meaſures to prevent crimes from being done againſt it by aliens, and may admit them into its territory, or for good cauſe order them out after they come into it. Thus then the law does not operate to deprive offenders of a trial by jury.

For the execution of this law, it was requiſite to declare how, and by whom, it ſhould be done; and no where could it be placed ſo ſafe from abuſe as in the ſupreme executive, appointed by the conſtitution. It is a tranſaction in its nature executive, and unmixed with legiſlative or judicial power. Without any law it may be queſtioned whether it was not a proper function of the executive power to order out of the country foreigners who are purſuing projects dangerous to the peace and welfare of the citizens, before ſuch projects are carried into effect. By ſome department in government ſuch acts ought to be done. The judges are poſſeſſed only of judicial power, and only declare what the law is, therefore removal of aliens is an act out of the power of them, and if done at all, muſt be done by the executive authority.

It is idle to ſay that each ſtate ſhould exerciſe the power of removing aliens. A ſtate can only remove out of its own limits, therefore if a ſtate, he might go into another, which might permit him to remain there. An alien ordered out of Virginia might go to Connecticut—Upon this ſubject there muſt be an union of action of all the ſtates, or it is uſeleſs; and therefore it ought to be done under the conſtitution of the United States, which was formed to obtain an union of action upon certain ſubjects, and contains certain powers far thoſe ends, which, eſpecially, comprehends our concerns with foreign nations, and requires "the United States to protect each ſtate from invaſion and domeſtic violence." The intimate connexion between a foreign invaſion and the reſidence of aliens diſpoſed to join the ſtandard of the invaders whenever it ſhall be erected on our land, has been fully explained as well as I am able, and it need not be repeated.

The clauſe in the conſtitution which provides "that the migration or importation of ſuch perſons as any of the ſtates now exiſting ſhall think proper to admit, ſhall not be prohibited by congreſs prior to the year 1808," has been alledged to be violated by the alien law. It is well known that this clauſe was meant to comprehend ſlaves only, though the terms are more general. The convention had a delicacy with reſpect to a word which would, in their opinion, have diſgraced the conſtitution, and therefore this vague expreſſion was uſed. That it does not allude to alien freemen is apparent, from the ſingle conſideration that the reſtraint is limited to a few years. Is there any good reaſon that congreſs ſhould be prohibited till the year 1808 from hindering the migration of free aliens, which would not have continued the prohibition beyond that period, and perhaps always? The truth is, the migration of ſlaves into a ſtate is a thing left to the controul and direction of each ſtate until the year 1808, and no longer; after which period that ſubject will be under the excluſive authority of the federal government.

To conſider this objection in another point of view, if, after the year 1808, congreſs will have an undoubted power to prohibit the migration of free aliens into the territories of the United States, or of ſending them out, if dangerous to our peace, what ſolid reaſon can be givin why the like power ſhould not be at this day exerciſed? No ſuch reaſon, I venture to ſay, has ever yet been given, either in ſpeeches on the floor of congreſs, or in remonſtrances, or in reſolutions, propoſed in Virginia. If none ſuch can be found, I think it a ſtrong argument againſt the interpretation that has been ſuggeſted of this clauſe of the conſtitution in derogation of the power of the United States over aliens.

The inveſtigation which I propoſed may now be concluded. I have ſuffered no objection to either of theſe laws to go unnoticed upon which any reliance ſeems to be placed. I have endeavoured to anſwer all of them, ſeparately and diſtinctly. In doing this, I have particularly aimed at perſpicuity: I am ſure the laws have not been underſtood, and to make them intelligible, I conſidered the beſt mode of juſtifying them.—Let them but be underſtood as they really are, and I have perſuaded myſelf to believe, that you will think them conſtitutional—and reſpecting their neceſſity or expediency, that you will confide in the wiſdom and patriotiſm of the national legiſlature, the ſupreme councils of our country, to whom by our free ſuffrages are committed our political exiſtence and ſafety; and with theſe, our deareſt intereſts of property, of liberty, and of life.

Let us not liſten to the agitators ſcattered through the country, buſy in deceiving, buſy in alarming, buſy in exciting the people againſt their own laws and their own law, givers. Let us not be miſguided by men, whoſe judgments and whoſe hearts are not more to be truſted than our own. Let us not be arrayed in a body—The Commonwealth of Virginia, againſt the United States of America.—I ſee no other point at which the men mean to ſtop, who underſtand and patronize the Hanover reſolutions, the Frederickſburg reſolutions, or Albemarle remonſtrance. They breathe no other ſpirit but that of inſurrection; and to give it conſiſtency and efficacy, our ſtate legiſlature, at the enſuing ſeſſion in the next month, is to be called upon to obtain the repeal of the alien and ſedition laws. A war of words is then to be commenced by our commonwealth againſt the United States. If words will not prevail on congreſs to repeal the laws, which every conſiderate man muſt expect to be the reſult, what is Virginia next to do? She muſt either retreat with ignominy, or more diſhonorably rebel againſt the Union. Are we prepared for ſuch an alternative? To you I ſubmit the queſtion: your good ſenſe has detected the inſidious and wicked machinations of the factious, and the lamentable errors of the miſinformed and deluded—your love of country will anſwer, that ſuch ſhall not be the deplorable fate of Virginia.

NORFOLK, December 6.

Yeſterday arrived here the ſchooner Swallow, capt. Logan, (in diſtreſs) 18 days from Cape Francois. In her came paſſenger Mr. Jacob Mayer, Conſul of the United States for that place, accompanied by a French gentleman, who, we have reaſon to believe, is the bearer of important diſpatches from General Touſſaint to the Executive of this country. We learn by this arrival that every thing was tranquil throughout the iſland, and that the crops bore a very promiſing appearance.

Yeſterday alſo arrived the American brig Elizabeth, from Malaga, via. Gibraltar, 53 days.

On Sunday laſt, 7 leagues to the ſouthward of Cape Henry, ſpoke the United States ſloop of war Herald, having in company the Montezuma ſloop of war, the brig Norfolk, and ſchooner Retaliation, all on a cruize, they were ſteering to the ſouthward.

By gentlemen, paſſengers in the above brig, we are informed, that there are upwards of 100 French privateers cruiſing between Cape de Gat and Cape Spartel; they mount from 8 to 16 guns, are well manned, and are fitted in the Spaniſh ports, for the purpoſe of capturing Americans. Six or ſeven privateers were expreſsly fitted out to capture the American Mediterranean fleet, but their deſigns were fruſtrated by the American veſſels being well armed keeping cloſe together.

At the time they left Gibraltar (the 8th October) a ſecret expedition was preparing; it was to conſiſt of a ſtrong naval force, and 3000 ſeaſoned troops; the rumours reſpecting its deſtination were various, but generally ſuppoſed againſt Minorca.

They had received no account from admiral Nelſon ſince the arrival of the Mutine brig; but expected the prize ſhips there the firſt wind. The Britiſh fleet, it was underſtood, would put into Candia to refit.

Mr. Jacob Mayer, conſul of the United States for St. Domingo, arrived in the Swallow, on his way to the ſeat of government, accompanied by a French gentlemen.

Capt. Logan informs us, that the privateers had ceaſed to bring in American veſſels, on account of new orders brought out by an armed ſhip from France. There was only one American veſſel at the Cape (a brig belonging to Philadelphia) when capt. L. failed.—She had been captured ſome time before, and it was generally ſuppoſed, would be cleared.

There was an embargo on all the French ports in the iſland: but a veſſel having arrived with diſpatches from France, it was expected that it would be taken off in a few days, and all the privateers called in.

Capt. Logan failed during the continuance of the embargo, by the expreſs permiſſion of the government of the iſland, obtained at the inſtance of Mr. Mayer.

All was tranquil at the Cape.

Proviſions were as follows:—flour 26 dls.—Pork 24—Beef 16. Produce, Coffee 18 ſous—Sugar (adminiſtration) 7 dolls—Ditto (private) 4 dolls.

His Excellency John Sevier, Governor of the ſtate of Teneſſee, and Brigadier General of the proviſional army, has addreſſed the regiment of cavalry of the diſtrict of Waſhington in that ſtate. He ſays, "When injured innocence and friendſhip have been treated with haughty and unparalleled contempt, how pleaſing and highly gratifying muſt it be to a provoked and greatly injured country, when informed of the gallant and ſoldiery preparations now making by the volunteer and other companies of cavalry, in the ſtate of Teneſſee. The cavalry in their anſwer obſerve, that "the citizens of the weſtern world are not divided in their ſentiments; our confidence remains unabated in our government, and we are willing to ſtep forth in defence of our country, ſhould neceſſity compel the meaſure."

ALEXANDRIA, December 8.

TO THE ALEXANDRIA INDEPENDENT DRAGOONS,
COMMANDED BY
CAPT. JOHN FITZGERALD.

GENTLEMEN,

PERMIT me to request your acceptance of a Standard, which I have the honor to present to you. That my offering has been delayed by unavoidable circumstances, is a subject of regret to me, as I have long wished, and intended to pay this tribute of respect to the brave defenders of our beloved country.

At a time when every friend to America must feel the strongest sensations at the unmerited and repeated insults and injuries she has sustained from that insolent enemy, who is bound by no laws, divine or human, whose pretended friendship is meant but to deceive, the determined spirit of my countrymen, their united resolution never to submit to foreign influence, and to forfeit the respect which is due to them as an independent nation, is highly gratifying to me;—and particularly so, when I observe the patriotism and military ardor which prevails in America, as it induces me to hope, that should invasion impend, the Alexandria Independent Dragoons will be among the first to assert and defend our rights.

ELEANOR PARKE CUSTIS.

Alexandria, December 6, 1798.

MADAM,

THE very elegant Standard of Colours which you have presented to our Troop, together with your polite and animated address upon the occasion, have excited in our minds all those sensations which necessarily arise from proper impressions of the nature and extent of the favour, as well as the importance of its object.

When the fair Daughters of Columbia see a necessity so far to overcome the timidity natural to the sex, as to spurn, indignantly, the haughty and insidious conduct of the present rulers of France, and to point out to us the only alternative to which our Independence, our honour, and the happiness of posterity invite us, we should hold it most highly criminal in her Sons and Citizens not to place themselves in the first possible state of defence, thereby declaring to the world that, should the Great Nation attempt to put her menaces in execution, America, united in arms, is too powerful to admit a hostile foe on her shores, and too unlimited in sentiment to be enthralled by artful and equivocal promises, only by a wrested and deceptive policy.

We accept, Madam, with peculiar pleasure, your invaluable gift, and venture to promise you, in return, that should future events render it necessary to display it in the field of war, we shall look up to it as a sacred pledge confided to our patriotism and our courage; and that whatever perils may surround us, ever mindful of the emphatic Motto which you have chosen, we shall adhere to its injunction, and, in defence of our country's rights—Conquer or Die.

In behalf of the Troop,
I have the honour to be
Your most obedient and
Most humble servant,
JOHN FITZGERALD,
Commandant,
Miss Eleanor Parke Custis,
Mount Vernon.

I have been politely favored with a letter from Richmond. The Legislature has met in that City, and much warmth has been displayed. Mr. J. Taylor, of Caroline County, moved for leave to bring in a bill for securing the members of the legislature from prosecutions under the Sedition Bill in case they should think proper, in the course of their proceedings, to charge Congress with an infraction of the Constitution in the passage of it, or should use any language, of produce any resolution of censure for the adoption of the house, which would bring them within the purview of that act. The motion was opposed upon the ground of the inutility of such a precaution—but leave was granted for the introduction of such a bill, and a committee appointed for the purpose.

NEW-PORT, December 4.

On Friday last arrived here the ship Ocean, of New-York, capt. Moores, in 56 days from Hamburg, the Hon. Gouverneur Morris, Esq. late Minister Plenipotentiary to the Republic of France, came passenger.

Capt. Moores, on the 5th Oct. spoke the ship Nancy, Capt. Childs of Boston, then within the Red Buoys, six weeks from Philadelphia, bearing up for Hamburg—his Main-topmast carried away.

PHILADELPHIA,

FRIDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 14.

This day, at 12 o'clock, the House of Representatives of the United States, in a body, preceded by their Speaker, Clerk, and the Serjeant at Arms, waited on the President, and presented the following Address:

To JOHN ADAMS,
PRESIDENT of the UNITED STATES.

SIR,

THE House of Representatives unite with you in deploring the effects of the desolating malady by which the seat of government and other parts of our country have recently been visited. In calling our attention to the fatality of its repeated ravages, and inviting us to consider the expediency of exercising our constitutional powers in aid of the health laws of the respective states, your recommendation is sanctioned by the dictates of humanity and liberal policy. On this interesting subject, we feel the necessity of adopting every wise expedient for preventing a calamity so distressing to individual sufferers and so prejudicial to our national commerce.

That our finances are in a prosperous state notwithstanding the commercial derangements resulting from this calamity and from external embarrassments, is a satisfactory manifestation of the great extent and solidity of the public resources. Connected with this situation of our fiscal concerns, the assurance, that the legal provisions for obtaining revenue by direct taxation will fulfil the views of the legislature, is peculiarly acceptable.

Desirous as we are that all causes of hostility may be removed by the amicable adjustment of national differences, we learn with satisfaction, that, in pursuance of our treaties with Spain and with Great-Britain, advances have been made for definitively settling the controversies relative to the southern and the north eastern limits of the United States. With similar sentiments have we received your information, that the proceedings under commissions, authorized by the same treaties, afford to a respectable portion of our citizens the prospect of a final decision on their claims for maritime injuries committed by subjects of those powers.

It would be the theme of mutual felicitation, were we assured of experiencing similar moderation and justice from the French Republic, between which and the United States differences have unhappily arisen.—But this is denied us by the ultimate failure of the measures which have been taken by this government towards an amicable adjustment of those differences and by the various inadmissible pretensions on the part of that nation.

The continuing in force the decree of January last, to which you have more particularly pointed our attention, ought, of itself, to be considered as demonstrative of the real intentions of the French government.—That decree proclaims a predatory warfare against the unquestionable rights of neutral commerce; which, with our means of defence, our interest and our honor command us to repel. It, therefore, now becomes the United States to be as determined in resistance as they have been patient in suffering and condescending in negotiation.

While those who direct the affairs of France persist in the enforcement of decrees so hostile to our essential rights, their conduct forbids us to confide in any of their professions of amity.

As, therefore, the conduct of France hitherto exhibits nothing which ought to change or relax our measures of defence, the policy of extending and invigorating those measures demands our sedulous attention. The sudden and remarkable advantages, which this country has experienced from a small naval armament, sufficiently prove the utility of its establishment. As it respects the guarding of our coast, the protection of our trade, and the facility of safely transporting the means of territorial defence to every part of our maritime frontier, an adequate naval force must be considered as an important object of national policy. Nor do we hesitate to adopt the opinion, that, whether negotiations with France are resumed or not, vigorous preparations for war will be alike indispensable.

In this conjuncture of affairs, while with you we recognize our abundant cause of gratitude to the Supreme Disposer of events for the ordinary blessings of Providence, we regard, as of high national importance, the manifestation, in our country, of a magnanimous spirit of resistance to foreign domination. This spirit merits to be cherished and invigorated, by every branch of government, as the estimable pledge of national prosperity and glory.

Disdaining a reliance on foreign protection; wanting no foreign guarantee of our liberties; resolving to maintain our national independence against every attempt to despoil us of this inestimable treasure; we confide, under Providence, in the patriotism and energies of the people of these United States for defeating the hostile enterprizes of any foreign power.

To adopt with prudent foresight such systematical measures as may be expedient for calling forth those energies wherever the national exigencies may require, whether on the ocean or on our own territory—and to reconcile with the proper security of revenue the convenience of mercantile enterprize, on which so great a proportion of the public resources depends—are objects of moment, which shall be duly regarded in the course of our deliberations.

Fully as we accord with you in the opinion, that the United States ought not to submit to the humiliation of sending another minister to France without previous assurances sufficiently determinate that he will be duly accredited—we have heard, with cordial approbation, the declaration of your purpose steadily to observe those maxims of humane and pacific policy by which the United States have hitherto been governed. While it is left with France to take the requisite steps for accommodation, it is worthy the Chief Magistrate of a free people to make known to the world, that justice on the part of France will annihilate every obstacle to the restoration of a friendly intercourse, and that the Executive Authority of this country will respect the sacred rights of embassy. At the same time, the wisdom and decision, which have characterised your past administration, assure us, that no illusory professions will seduce you into any abandonment of the rights which belong to the United States as a free and independent nation.

To which the President made the following

REPLY:

To the HOUSE of REPRESENTATIVES of the UNITED STATES of AMERICA.

GENTLEMEN,

MY sincere acknowledgments are due to the House of Representatives of the United States, for this excellent address, so consonant to the character of representatives of a great and free people. The judgment and feelings of a nation I believe were never more truly expressed by their representatives, than those of our constituents, by your decided declaration, that with our means of defence, our interest and honor command us to repel a predatory warfare against the unquestionable rights of neutral commerce—That it becomes the United States to be as determined in resistance as they have been patient in suffering and condescending in negociation—That while those who direct the affairs of France persist in the enforcement of decrees, so hostile to our essential rights, their conduct forbids us to confide in any of their professions of amity, that an adequate naval force must be considered as an important object of national policy, and that whether negociations with France are resumed or not, vigorous preparations for war, will be alike indispensable.

The generous disdain you so coolly and deliberately express, of a reliance on foreign protection, wanting no foreign guarantee of our liberties, resolving to maintain our national independence against every attempt to dispoil us of this inestimable treasure, will meet the full approbation of every sound understanding, and exulting applauses from the heart of every faithful American.

I thank you, Gentlemen, for your candid approbation of my sentiments on the subject of negociation, and for the declaration of your opinion, that the policy of extending and invigorating our measures of defence, and the adoption with prudent foresight, such systimatical measures as may be expedient for calling forth the energies of our country, wherever the national exigencies may require, whether on the ocean, or on our own territory, will demand your most sedulous attention.

At the same time I take the liberty to assure you, it shall be my vigilant endeavour, that no illusory professions shall seduce me into an abandonment of the rights which belong to the United States, as a free and independent nation.

JOHN ADAMS.

United States, Dec. 14, 1798.

Doctor Logan, it is said, was so mortified with the reception which M. Talleyrand gave him, as to return home, with a very indifferent opinion of that minister's talents!—On being introduced to him, Talleyrand observed that he had the pleasure of knowing him in America, and asked him, if he was'nt a distinguished farmer of Pennsylvania?—The doctor answered, that "he was very fond of farming, and had made it the pleasure of his life."—"Oh then, replied Talleyrand, I will introduce you to a citizen near Paris, with whose speculations on that subject I am sure you will be delighted"—and then left the doctor and Merlin, his favorite, to their own meditations. This anecdote, related by the illegitimate envoy himself, is a proof that, even among our enemies, the ignorant pretensions of this fellow, are despised by men of sense, and that Talleyrand, who is confessedly a scholar and an arch politician, thought that the doctor had much better employ his time in studying the vegetation of potatoes, than in attempting to mediate between two governments.

The French prisoners were removed from New-Castle for Lancaster on Saturday last.

The picaroon which the United States frigate came up with, after twelve hours chase, was the fleetest vessel in the West-Indies, always out sailing the British cruizers.

The British naval officers in the West Indies, were highly pleased on the appearance of the United States frigate, &c. in those latitudes; and the Commodore at Martinico, regretted, that when the United States. Commodore Barry passed the Island, he did not honor him with a visit. Captain Barry being in chase of one of Hugue's picaroons, called "Victor's Delight," could not pay the visit wished, but sent a polite letter to Sir Hyde Parker, from St. Thomas's on the subject.

The following, we are told, is an accurate calculation of the distribution of the prize money resulting from Admiral Nelson's victory — Supposing that the nine French ships taken sell for 30,000l.—of this one eighth goes to the Flag Officers, viz. one third of the eighth to the commander in chief, Earl St. Vincent, and the remaining two thirds to Sir Horatio Nelson. The other flag officers, not being present, have no right to share, Thus of 170,000l. the supposed gross amount of the value of the prizes, including head and gun money, one eighth will be 33,750l. of which Earl St. Vincent gets 11,250l.—and Sir Horatio Nelson 22,500l.—The captains of the fleet, fifteen in number, share two eighths amongst them, which will make each individual share of this rank, 4,500l.

PROPOSALS
BY BENJAMIN DAVIES,

For publishing by subscription, a periodical work to be entitled The Philadelphia Magazine and Review; or, Monthly Repository of Information and Amusement.

AFTER the many fruitless attempts, which have been made to establish a publication of this kind in Philadelphia, the proposals now submitted, will, perhaps, at first sight appear to be nothing more than soliciting disappointment. When, however, we observe an eager search after knowledge spreading through all parts of our country, and when we consider, that, in these pursuits, Magazines and Reviews are of universally-admitted utility, we are led to believe, that former undertakings in this way have failed from some other cause than the want of discernment or liberality in those, to whom the Editors looked up for support.

From causes, which are too evident to need enumerating here, America is, and long must be beholden in a very considerable degree, to the presses of Great Britain. The literature of the two countries is, indeed, a sort of common stock; but, for one publication of ours, we receive, at least five hundred in return. While this is the case, it is extreme folly in the publisher of a periodical work, to reject, from a sort of spurious patriotism, all information, however useful, and all amusement, however delightsome, merely because it is not of native production. Obvious, however, as the justice of these remarks must appear we have very little doubt in our minds, that an obstinate adherence to a contrary notion has been the principal cause of the want of success, experienced by those who have gone before us.

Reason and interest unite in dictating to us a different plan. The Miscellaneous part, and principal part, therefore, of the Philadelphia Magazine, will consist of choice selections from the newest publications of merit, that shall appear in Europe; but, particularly from the various periodical works published in Great-Britain, of which we have taken care to insure the very earliest supply. At the same time, we trust it is unnecessary to say, that we shall always receive with pleasure any original productions of genius, in verse or prose, of our own country; and we flatter ourselves with the hope of being often favoured with the agreeable task of giving to such productions merited praises and extensive publicity.

In selecting and arranging these materials, to suit the various tastes of our readers, we are sensible how difficult a task we have undertaken. To please all, we do not expect: it would be a vain presumption. But we are resolved to give offence to none, so far as consists with the superior respect we owe to the sacred cause of religion, morality, and social order. In these are involved the glory and welfare of our country, and they will always be the Polar-star, that shall guide our labors.

The Miscellany will be followed by a monthly Summary of News and politics, foreign as well as domestic; under which head will be comprised a succinct account of the Proceedings of the General and State Legislatures, and the titles, at least, of all the law, they shall enact.

The next part of our undertaking, is a Review, of the principal works of note published in Great-Britain. For this we must necessarily have recourse to the Reviews of that country. Though it will be impossible for us to furnish as complete an analysis as that from which we shall take our materials, we shall not fail to give such an account of every publication reviewed in that country, as will convey to our readers information sufficient to enable them to avail themselves at a very early stage, of every valuable performance that shall appear. The advantages arising from such information are evident. For want of it our professional men and men of taste are always kept a year or two in the rear of those of Great-Britain. We do not hear of a work till a long time after it is published, and many very valuable ones we never hear of at all. All the various injuries and privations we suffer from this source will, we flatter ourselves, be entirely done away by a steady adherence to our plan.

To that of foreign, will be added a Review of Domestic Publications; and here, we must confess, that we feel some diffidence, because the execution of the task must depend, in a great measure, upon the abilities of ourselves. However, with a firm resolution to be guided by decency, candour, and truth, and to take genius and virtue by the hand, whenever, and in whatever garb, we may find them; with no wish to wound the feelings of any but the wicked, and with the most sincere desire of seeing our countrymen shine in every department of literature, we doubt not, that we shall be able to acquit ourselves to the satisfaction of all those who have the good-nature fairly to appreciate our motives, and the justice to make allowance for human imperfections.

The work will close with a monthly record of Marriages, Births, Deaths, Promotions, and other casual incidents.

As to what concerns the politics of this country or of Europe, at this momentous period, we shall always view with jealousy every measure of the French Government, and it's ever active emissaries; and if in this respect some men consider us as partial or prejudiced, we shall submit to their censure. For so full is our conviction that the war, which now desolates Europe, and menaces this country, is a war of ambition and plunder, on the part of France, that nothing can induce us to conceal our sentiments, or to withhold the small assistance that we can contribute to oppose them. For this reason we intend to devote a page or two of every number to historical facts, anecdotes, and remarks on the Politics of France, from the age of Louis the Fourteenth to the present more alarming epoch. For more than a century past has that restless and ambitious people been like a volcano in the centre of Europe, disturbing the surrounding States by its interior, and once in every eight or ten years overwhelming its most hostile countries with devastation and carnage.

Indeed it is more than eighteen hundred years since the great Roman Orator thought it his duty to warn his countrymen against that conduct and those principles, for which the present race of Gauls are as justly to be dreaded as their savage ancestors; "Gallis fidem non habendam, hominibus levibus, perfidis, in eos ipsos Deos immortales impios."

By the proper management of this topic our countrymen will be able to see the real character of the nation, which they formerly considered as their friends, but now more justly execrate as their most dangerous enemies; and they will be better prepared to appreciate any overtures, that may be made hereafter, for the restoration of peace and amity.

In the execution of this part of our design, particularly "we look with confidence for the support and assistance of all persons who shall consider our motives as laudable, and therefore wish to contribute to the success of our design;—of all who think, with us, that the press has been too long an engine of destruction, and that it ought, at length to be rendered a mean of preservation, and an instrument of protection."

CICERO.

"Literature, well or ill conducted, is the great "engine by which, I am fully persuaded, all civilised States must ultimately be supported or "overthrown." Pursuits of Literature.

The CONDITIONS.

This work will be published in Monthly Numbers; and if a moderate encouragement is given the first number will appear on the first day of February next,

Each number will contain at least fifty pages of letter press, in octavo, under a blue cover. It will be printed on a fair and good paper; and, as soon as our list of subscribers will warrant the expence, every number will be embellished with an elegant engraving.

The price to the Subscribers will be twenty-five cents for each number, to be paid on delivery at some one of the places specified below, where the subscriptions have been received; and as soon as there are sufficient to make a handsome volume, they will be bound together, for such subscribers as choose it, they paying the additional expence.

Subscriptions will be received by Benjamin Davis, at No. 68, High street, where the favours of all Correspondents of which the postage has been paid, will be received, and duly attended to, as well by all the principal Booksellers in the city; by George Hill, Bookseller in Baltimore; and by Arenibald Drummond, Bookseller in New-York.

A CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

JOHN A. SHAEFFER, of Philadelphia, who has for a few years paſt been in the ſouthern States, has had the effrontery to draw ſeveral Bills of Exchange on Timothy Pickering, Eſq. Secretary of State, and myſelf, and by that means has defrauded a number of perſons of their money, deceiving them by an exhibition of letters and papers with the names affixed of divers public characters and reputable merchants highly recommendatory of ſaid Shaeffer; to one of theſe papers I find my name ſubſcribed, but I do not know the man; theſe are villainous forgeries! To prevent further impoſition, I have to requeſt the printers of Newſpapers in the United States to publiſh this for the benefit of their fellow-citizens. SAMUEL MEREDITH,

Treaſurer of the United States.
